Chapter 3 by Jayson Augustin

I was a boy named Wade Wilson (cue dubstep) early life is mostly unknown. my mother died of cancer while I was young and my father (who was in the military) was physically abusive. I was a delinquent in my teenage years, possibly to spite my father. However one night while drinking with my friends my father attempt to take him out of the club one of my friends stole My Fathers handgun and killed him. Following a brief stint of military service, I began my mercenary career while still in my late teens. Accepting assassination jobs only against those whom I felt deserved death, I made a habit of using plastic surgery and technology to take on a new identity whenever I failed an assignment.
